Effect of Ca^{2+} -ionophore A23187 on the distribution of Ca^{2+} and ATP in rat renal tubules. The effect of Ca^{2+} -ionophore A23187 on the distribution of calcium and ATP in the renal tubules was examined. A23187 (2.5 X 10⁻⁵ M) inhibited the effect of oxalate on the active transport of Ca^{2+} and ATP in the renal tubules (inhibition ranged from 35% to 50% after incubation for 20 min). The tubules released calcium and ATP more effectively in the presence of A23187. Furthermore, the mitochondrial activity in the tubules was higher than in the control and the tubules exhibited a dose-dependent increase in the rate of release of ATP and calcium. These results suggest that A23187 released calcium from the mitochondria and that the ATP released from the mitochondria played an important role in the increase of the Ca^{2+} released from the mitochondria. !{ 82157476af
